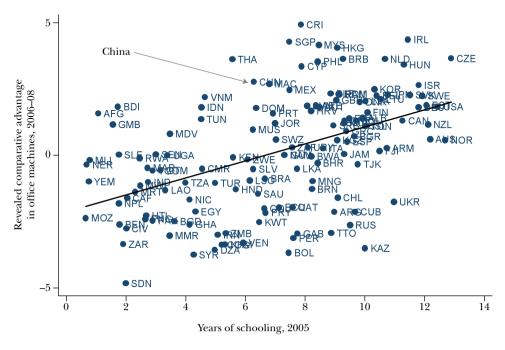

Figure 4

Education and Exports of Office Machines

Source: Author's calculations using (World Bank) World Development Indicators and UN Comtrade. Notes: Figure 4 plots countries' revealed comparative advantage in office machines—Standard International Trade Classification (SITC) industry 75—averaged over 2006 to 2008, against the average years of schooling of the adult population in 2005. Revealed comparative advantage in computers is defined as the log ratio of a country's share of world exports of SITC 75 to its share of world exports of all merchandise. The countries are indicated by their World Bank abbreviations.